1 Owner 34 TARPON (called the 34 Tarpon in - Click here to reveal phone number - and then changed to Tarpon 360 a model year or so later) powered by Twin 300HP Suzukuis with 315 hours use and still under warranty.

BROKER REMARKS

Now called the Stamas 362 CCC TARPON, With an overall length of about 40 feet and a 12-foot beam, this is a truly mammoth center-console design. With room for half a dozen fishermen to drop their lines off the back while another batch of folks deal out a game front. With the 340 Tarpon, Stamas has created a unique boat that bridges the gap between a traditional center-console and a sport fisherman.

The cockpit has the size and feel of a small sportfisherman. One particularly interesting feature is an electric lift for the cockpit sole. With the sole raised belowdecks is a cavernous and has storage area that would be ideal for storing dive equipment and scuba tanks. Above deck and aft, a transom door to starboard leads out to a large dive platform In the transom is more storage and a forward-facing bench seat with plenty of room between it and the helm station. Moving forward, a tackle center and counter area complete with freshwater sink are just aft of the leaning post. Like everything else on this boat, the console itself is quite roomy. It would be no problem to have three people at the leaning post,

The third "C" in the 340 Tarpon CCC stands for cabin. Where most center-consoles might offer a commodious head under the console, the Stamas has a full blown cabin suitable for overnighing. The cozy accommodations are equipped with a head, sink, small refrigerator and a double bunk. Our test boat was also fitted with an optional inverter/charger package which includes a flat panel TV/DVD player, air-conditioning and microwave oven.

Underway, the Tarpon is fast and nimble. "With six people aboard and relatively flat conditions, we cruised at 25 knots (4400 rpm). Wide open we made a shade under 40 knots" (From a bottest review). The Stamas 340 Tarpon should appeal to fisherman and dive enthusiasts alike, and with a cabin big enough to turn an afternoon outing into a weekend trip, you could put some distance on it as well.
