As written by Boston Whaler history: In 1958, company founder Richard T. Fisher introduced the first Boston Whaler(c) boat in Braintree, Massachusetts. It featured two significant innovations: first, its twin sponson hull design produced superior stability and a remarkably dry ride; second, its unique foam core construction made the boat not only durable, but unsinkable as well. Fisher took every opportunity to illustrate the unique characteristics of the Boston Whaler(c). His most famous demonstration was captured in 1961, by Life Magazine. The series of photographs showed the boat underway, the boat being sawed in half and ultimately Fisher motoring away in the remaining half of the boat. And through the years many other demonstrations have proved the toughness and durability of the Boston Whaler hull. And though you may never cut your boat in half, this only goes to show one thing, people whose livelihood and lives depend on boats consistently choose Boston Whaler(c) because of their seaworthiness, dependability and the inherent safety of a hull that won't sink even if severely damaged.
